DTX Swage Block

#dtxblock 250 lbs COMING SOON

This swage block is perfectly designed, not only incorporates hemispheres, spoon and special-shaped elements to expand the function, but is also well-made with good toughness and surface hardness of 50 to 54 HRC.

Make your shop more equipped for smithing with this swage block. They are super handy and have many uses.

This block has a nice combination of round, rectangular, and square holes. The outer edges are great for dishing and the smaller holes work well for upsetting. Please take a close look at the pictures. Swage blocks can be used for a variety of jobs. They are great for punching, upsetting and bending. Holes with worn edges and depressions can be used for dishing. Large holes are useful for turning edges on pipe or tubing.

The swages on the outside edges can be used with matching top swages for forging a number of shapes and sizes.

Or hot metal can be hammered in the swage cavity forming it into the shape of the swage.

The square holes can support hardies and stakes.

Anvils are as massive as is practical, because the higher their inertia, the more efficiently they cause the energy of striking tools to be transferred to the work piece. In most cases the anvil is used as a forging tool. Before the advent of modern welding technology, it was a primary tool of metal workers.

Made of 6150 alloy steel with a surface hardness of 56 to 61 HRC. Has great bounce, smooth face and nice edges.

Build Your Own Hydraulic Forging Press By Jim Batson

This book and drawings are designed to help you build your own 24 ton Hydraulic Forging Press. A two horsepower 220 volt single phase motor running at 1725 RPM powers a 5.5 gallon per minute "Hi-Lo" hydraulic pump.

Ram force of 24 tons is applied by a 5" diameter double acting hydraulic cylinder at 2500 psi pressure. The movement of the ram die is controlled by a 4 way, 3 position hydraulic valve. The length of the ram stroke is 8". The maximum speed of the ram is 1.1 inches per second. The ram speed can be doubled by using a 5 horsepower electric motor running at 3600 RPM. A section is included which will enable you to alter a Log Splitter for use as a Forging Press
